Israeli Consul General Invited To Delaware State Legislature

Pinchas Gonen

For the first time in history, the Delaware Legislature invited a representative of the State of Israel to address both chambers of the General Assembly. Pinchas Gonen, consul general of the State of Israel was given that opportunity on May 8 on the occasion of Israel's 36th anniversary.

Previous to the addresses before the House of Representatives and Senate, Gonen spoke at an informal luncheon attended by 22 representatives and senators. Gonen spoke of the mutual concerns of Israel and the United States: both countries were founded on principles of democracy and freedom. He stated that Israel, as the only democracy in the Middle East is, indeed, an ally of the United States. "Peace with its neighbors is what Israel wishes more than anything else," he said. "Israel has lived from its beginning with war and terrorism, and it wishes peace. Israel with its peace treaty with Egypt has demonstrated its desire to make concessions, accommodations and give up important strategic and economic resources for peace. In the Sinai, Israel gave up all the oil reserves of the entire Sinai; enough oil to have fulfilled all of Israel's energy needs."

Gonen spoke of mutual trade cooperation between the United States and Israel and the advantage to both countries. He stressed that Israel is the most technologically advanced country in the entire Middle East and Africa.

Gonen was introduced to the legislators by Irving Levitt, chairman of the Community Relations Com-

Gush Emunim Officially Condemns Alleged Jewish Terrorist Underground

By GIL SEDAN

JERUSALEM, (JTA) - The Gush Emunim has officially condemned the alleged Jewish terrorist underground currently under investigation for acts of violence against Arab civilians including the attempted sabotage of Arab-owned buses in East Jerusalem which was foiled by security forces late last month. A similar position was taken by the Golan Heights Regional Council.

But the investigation, now in its fourth week, has reportedly uncovered evidence that Jewish terrorist acts in the occupied territories and East Jerusalem have far deeper roots in the settlement movement than originally suspected.

Moreover, there seems to be a sharp division between a majority of the settlers whose official position coincides with that of the Gush Emunim and a not inconsiderable minority which justifies violence as the only means to counter Arab terrorism.

The Gush Emunim issued a statement last Thursday deploring attempts to harm Arabs. They insisted that the settlement of Eretz Yisrael should not be advanced by deporting Arabs or by attacks on Arab lives and property. The Gush said they opposed vigilantism and affirmed that the government has the sole responsibility to protect the security and welfare of the populace.

Gush Leader Assails The Government

Nevertheless, Rabbi Moshe Levinger, the Gush Emunim leader in Kirat Arba, adjacent to Hebron, assailed the government last week for not taking effective action to prevent Arab terrorism. He claimed that alleged Jewish terrorism was a response to

United Way To Honor 'Volunteers Of the Year'

Selected volunteers, nominated by United Way agencies, will be honored May 23 by the Council of Agency Executives and the United Way of Delaware. The "Volunteer of the Year" ceremonies will be held at Clayton Hall, at the University of Delaware at 7 p.m. A social hour begins at 6 p.m.

Keynote speaker for the evening is Lisle C. Carter, Jr., a distinguished Washington, D.C. attorney with an outstanding history of volunteer involvement.

He serves on the Southern Education Foundation, Children's Defense Fund, Aspen Institute, Dartmouth College, Georgetown University and the Kettering Foundation.

He has served as the president of the University of the District of Columbia and chancellor of Atlanta University Center; and as a member of the faculty and administration of Cornell University.

In the 1960s, Carter was deputy assistant secretary in the civil rights area and again as assistant secretary for Individual and Family Services.

He will speak, Wednesday evening, on "Volunteerism in the 80s."

Among those receiving the "Volunteer of the Year" award are Ruth Balick, Jewish Family Service board member and past president, and Gilbert Mann, member of the Jewish Community Center's Physical Education Committee.

Gush Emunim —

(Continued from Page 1) the ineptness of the government. Levinger was summoned to Jerusalem police headquarters last Thursday for further questioning. He had been called in once before and this time there were reports that he had been arrested.

He was questioned for seven hours. Yediot Achronot reported that a top political figure had authorized the further interrogation about the alleged Jewish underground.

Porat: Movement Will Purge Vigilantes

One of the founders of the Gush Emunim, Hannan Porat, said on a television interview Thursday night that the Gush would undertake "an educational and information campaign" within and outside the movement and would "purge those who would take the law into their own hands."

He sought to distance the Gush Emunim from what he implied was an extremist fringe. "Every great idea, such as the settlement movement inevitably draws to its margins those who deviate from the ideal," he said.

Porat insisted that the settlement movement was solidly united. But there is growing evidence that this is not the case. Science Minister Yuval Neeman of the ultra-nationalist Tehiya Party created a furor in Israel last week when he claimed there were "some positive aspects" to the car bomb attacks that crippled two East Bank Arab mayors in June, 1980.

Residents of Kiryat Arba, where Levinger has been the acknowledged leader, drew up a petition critical of Porat's remarks. It described the 25 suspects being held in custody in connection with the bus sabotage attempt as "persons with a good record in the settlement movement who organized to avenge the murders of Jews by Arab terrorists."

The petition claimed that those persons performed "deeds that the government could not or would not do but which are the only answer to terror." The detainees should not be called an "underground" because they did not join forces to act against the government, the petition said.

Long-Standing Conspiracy Reported

Meanwhile, the investigation of the suspects remained under a news blackout. Media reports have linked them to acts of violence against Arabs or attempted acts long before the bus sabotage attempt. There were reports last Friday of a long-standing conspiracy to deliberately worsen relations between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

According to those reports, its purpose is not only to take reprisals for Arab terrorists acts but to frighten Arabs to leave Israel and its occupied territories. One theory has it that some of the Jewish terrorists believe the departure of the Arabs would hasten the coming of the Messiah.

Israeli media reported Friday that the Jewish underground had two "projects" underway. One was to blow up the El Aksa Mosque and the Dome of the Rock, two of the holiest shrines of Islam on the Temple Mount in East Jerusalem.

There was no official confirmation of any of these allegations and the authorities are making every effort to keep the investigation confidential until such time as formal indictments are filed against the suspects. There is no indication when this may be, although reports last week indicated the investigation was nearing the end.

Meanwhile, the Gush Emunim announced that legal aid would be extended to the suspects, but on an individual basis rather than as a body. The Golan Heights Regional Council also announced it would provide legal aid to the suspects and financial help for their families. Six residents of the Golan Heights are said to be among the suspects. The majority are reportedly residents of the West Bank.

The Mystique Of The Wall

At this season when we celebrate the anniversary of the State of Israel I always recall my very early years when the Jewish homeland was just a dream. I am still overwhelmed by the fact that I have seen in my lifetime the establishment of the Third Commonwealth.

Israel touches each of us in different ways. Freda Goldberg recently returned from her first visit. She was so anxious to share with others her feelings that I invited her to write about them for my column. These are her words.

"On my first trip to Israel one of the places I was most anxious to visit in Jerusalem was the Western Wall. Many of my friends say they had burst into tears or ran up to the stones or became very emotional at the sight.

"I did not do or feel any of the above. I could not understand myself. Had not my great-grandfather left his native Austria to spend his remaining years in Jerusalem? Wasn't it possible that I was walking in his very footsteps here at the Wall?

"As I stepped up to the Wall for the first time I was surprised to recognize a young man from Wilmington celebrating his Bar Mitzvah with his beaming father at his side. They waved in recognition and I felt a little stirring within me.

"Then I suddenly realized that the young woman standing beside me was weeping softly. I asked if anything was wrong. She threw herself into my arms and said she was very homesick. She was from London, England, and after finishing high school she had chosen to attend a religious school in Jerusalem.

"She could not understand why her parents did not also want to come to Israel since they were Survivors. I tried to explain that they had probably found a new life in England and were content. She finally agreed with me and admitted that she now had a better understanding of the situation.

"I spoke with a young woman engineer from Pittsburgh who also missed her family. I'd like to feel that I also helped her in some small way.

"As I looked around I saw a group of Ethiopian Jews and then Chassidim hastening to Torah study and prayer. Here and there were Israeli soldiers, deep in prayer with guns slung over their shoulders and tzitzit hanging from beneath their jackets. There was even a bride and groom in their wedding regalia praying for a blessed life in marriage. All this so impressed me!

"I spoke to an American, now a reserve soldier, who had moved his family to Jerusalem. He had served in the Korean War and loved the United States but felt a deep responsibility to live in Israel and serve as best he could.

"Suddenly I realized something. This was not just a stone wall for me to exult about. It was the people I had seen and the people to whom I had spoken. This was the excitement of the Wall for me! It was the past, the present, and the future. It was the continuity of Jewish life itself.

"I returned to the same place that evening. There was a ceremony underway for an Army Engineers' group that had completed its training course. The name of the group was spelled out in large burlap-wrapped Hebrew letters which were set on fire. As they burned the commander made a speech and a woman sang a plaintive melody. Then as each soldier was handed his rifle he bowed his head in prayer.

"And so the faith goes on. The struggle goes on."

Also attending from the Delaware Jewish community were Doris and Irving Morris, Charlotte and Jerry Zaback, Sandy Solomon, Richard and Andrea Barros, Steven Schwartz, Ruth and Bob Kerbel, Evelyn Lobel and Paula Lehrer, who worked on the planning committee with Phyllis Levitt and Judy Arenson.

Gonen was introduced to the House of Representatives by Robert Gilligan, Majority Leader of the House, who also presented the House Concurrent Resolution #187 which was passed by voice vote by the House and later by the Senate. (The Resolution will be found on page 6.)

Gonen, who was born in Czechoslovakia, was saved from extermination by Youth Aliyah in 1939.

He lost his entire family in the Holocaust. He served in the Haganah and Palmach through the War of Independence in 1948 and retired as a Lt. Colonel of the Israel Defense Force in 1964. He has a law degree from Hebrew University and has served in the Foreign Ministry from 1964 to the present. Before coming to the United States in 1981 as Consul General, Gonen served as Ambassador to Swaziland, Lesotho and Botswana, South Africa. He has also served as representative of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the administered territories of Judea, Samaria, the Gaza Strip and Golan Heights.

He is married to Hadassah Gonen, senior lecturer, Faculty of Fine Arts, Academy of Music, University of Tel Aviv.

ON THE OTHER HAND N. Even-Or

If I Forget Thee

Yom Yerushalayim, Jerusalem Day, falls this year on May 30, the 17th anniversary of the unification of Jerusalem in the Six Day War. As the day approaches, almost half of the members of the House of Representatives and the Senate are sponsoring parallel bills directing the Administration to move the United States Embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem. President Reagan and his Secretary of State have voiced their firm opposition to such a bill.

We would all agree that Israel is a very special country, but must it be the only one in which the U.S. Embassy is located in other than the country's designated capital city? The Administration argument is the old tired one, that it will upset the Arabs. Is there any way to end the upset of the Arabs except the complete elimination of the State of Israel? Have all the AWACS and F-15's and miscellaneous weaponry shipped to Saudi Arabia and the other so-called moderates brought them to the peace table? Will we never learn from all the rebuffs we have suffered in administration after administration, the most recent from Syria in the matter of Lebanon and from the little king of Jordan in the matter of Camp David? Will we never learn that these nations respond constructively only to strength, only to power, never to concessions, which only excite the next round of demands?

But there is a real world in addition to the Alice in Wonderland world. Jerusalem is the capital of Israel whether recognized as such or not, just as Israel does exist whether or not its neighbors are willing to grant her the right to exist.

Arguments over who should control Jerusalem have raged over more than two millenia, and they have been resolved and re-resolved by the sword and the rifle, not by words. By blood, not by discussion. Blood of Crusader and Turk, blood of Christian, Jew and Muslim. And through all this, three times each day the Jew has turned his face toward Jerusalem to pray, just as his Muslim neighbor turned his face to Mecca.

The fact is that at no time in its long troubled history have Jerusalem and its holy sites been more accessible to the three religions that revere them than they are today. Muslim, Christian and Jew are protected in their sacred precincts as at no other time in history, protected and respected. How soon are forgotten the desecrations perpetrated by the "moderate" little king's Jordanian troops on the ancient synagogues and burial places of Jerusalem from 1948 to 1967!

Despite the continuing fury of argument over the status of Jerusalem that rages on the outside, there is a considerable degree of harmony in the daily life of the city itself, and a major amount of credit for this must be given to the charismatic mayor, Teddy Kollek, now serving his fifth term in office. Since 1965 Kollek has built a reputation for fairness, for seeking racial and religious tolerance for all Jerusalemites, and for dedicating himself to improving the quality of life for all in the city. In pursuing this path he has not been unwilling to oppose his government when he thought that it was wrong. Probably no other mayor in the world has ever dealt with a more challenging situation. One measure of his success is in the popularity he enjoys among all segments of the population. Winning 65% of the vote in the last election is indicative, for example, of major support from the Arab votes of the city. There are those who believe that Muslim religious leaders, with whom he is on excellent terms, have fared better under his governance than they did under Jordanian rule.

But Jerusalem from the time of King David has always been more than buildings and streets, men and women, synagogues, churches and mosques. It has been an idea, a vision, that inspired the psalmist and the scholar, the poet and the priest.

Almost 200 years ago the talmudist wrote, "Ten measures of beauty were given the world; nine were taken by Jerusalem and one by all the rest."

This year Sandra Cohen, a Canadian poet who made aliyah in 1968, expressed a similar passion:

*"I shall give you
a mosaic
and when you have picked out one by one each of its thousand hues
I will tell you
of Jerusalem
and when you have
savored
the honeyed glitter of a thousand days and nights
in one
I will tell you
of Jerusalem"*

Hope And Foreboding

This is part two of a speech delivered by Thomas A. Dine, executive director of the American Israel Public Affairs Committee, at the AIPAC policy conference last month.

Today, U.S.-Israel relations are greatly improved especially as compared to a year ago. Yet, at the same time, we have an intuition that stormy troubles lie just ahead, perhaps as soon as the election is over, no matter who is the winner.

It has to do with the expectation, reported widely in the media, that what is called the "peace process" will resume after the election. This process is expected to focus on King Hussein and resurrect the now dormant package of issues witnessed last year. Whether the next president is Reagan, Mondale or Hart, people have this image of the "peace process" and they expect it to begin again sometime after November 1984. Now this is a peculiar situation. How is it that the pro-Israel coalition, especially the Jewish community, feels such a sense of anxiety at the very mention of resuming this "peace process?"

American Jews are second to nobody — I mean nobody — in their desire for peace. Over time we have been the dreamers, the cosmopolitans, the true internationalists. To all Jews, to achieve real peace in the Middle East would mean that at last Israel would be safe, that the arms race could end, and that the Jewish state could live normally among the nations. Peace is all that Israel asks. And peace, more than anything, is the dream of the pro-Israel community in America.

The Peace Process

Yet we have been subjected to much abuse recently in the name of something purporting to be the "peace process." We thus immediately feel a sense of foreboding when told that this process will begin again in a few months.

How, then, has the noble idea of peace been so corrupted by mistaken practice to produce such a negative reaction in us?

The answer, I submit, is that in the past few years the real and noble process of making peace that began at Camp David has been put aside, and the term "peace process" has been expropriated as a code word for a different policy that actually consists of tilting toward the Arabs and deliberately provoking tensions with Israel.

In reality this is a conflict process.

I know that I am making a very serious accusation, and to substantiate it I would like to draw some contrasts between what actually happened at Camp David and what many of the foreign policy establishment of officials, experts, and columnists expect the so-called peace process to look like next year.

The Camp David process began when Anwar Sadat announced, at his own initiative, a willingness to sit down with Israel and negotiate problems and differences peaceably. But if we have a so-called peace process next year, it is not expected to begin with King Hussein agreeing in anything. Rather, it would begin with another round of wishful thinking about Hussein by advisers and experts who predictably will assert that if only the United States offers him enough promises and weapons and pledges of pressure against Israel then maybe he will consent to consider a negotiation. This, only after his preconditions are met. So, what is now called the peace process will not begin with the two sides actually sitting down at all. Instead, we will know the process is under way when more arms are proposed for Jordan, or the Administration starts squeezing Israel on settlements, or the United States begins promising the Arabs that they will get their demands in negotiations that have not even begun.

Jewish Population Falls; Leaders Are Concerned

By KAREN MOSS

A two-part series of articles in The Wall Street Journal last month focused on the phenomenon of the "shrinking American Jewish population."

The carefully researched and well-written articles spell out several reasons for the population decline: U.S. Jews are not bearing enough children to replace themselves, Jewish immigration is down, and intermarriage is becoming more and more frequent.

"It's a remarkable twist of history," says David Belin, a Des Moines, Iowa attorney active in the liberal Reform movement of Judaism, "what couldn't be done in the name of terror is being done in the name of freedom."

According to the latest annual population survey conducted by the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds, there are 5.3 million Jews in the U.S. or 13% fewer than its 1972 estimate of 6.1 million. Elihu Bergman, a Washington D.C. lobbyist and longtime student of Jewish population trends, is sticking by controversial predictions he made while at the Harvard Center for Population Studies in 1977: if present trends continue, the nation's Jewish population will decline to 420,000 - or to less than a tenth of its present size - by the year 2076.

"How to stem this population erosion is evolving into an urgent - and divisive - issue for American Jewry, one that has heightened underlying friction between traditionalists and liberals," notes the Journal article.

As a group, Jews tend to marry later and are more likely to remain single than the population as a whole. Further, according to sociologists and family experts, Jewish women tend to defer childbearing and limit family size because of career pursuits.

The Wall Street Journal points out another related problem: about 40% of the U.S. Jewish population is over 45, compared with 30% of the population as a whole. As these middle-aged and elderly people die over the next 25 to 30 years, there will be fewer Jewish children to replenish the ranks," the Journal says.

Intermarriage, however, has Jewish leaders worried far more than demographic changes. According to the Journal article, roughly one in every four Jews now marries outside the faith. This is up from one in 50 during the early 1900s and one in five in the early 1960s. Interfaith marriages produce even fewer children than strictly Jewish marriages, and only a small percentage of the offspring wind up thinking of themselves as Jews, the Journal notes.

This unraveling of close cultural ties is consistent with past patterns, according to Paul Ritterband, a sociology professor at the City College of New York. He explains that the third generation of Jews in the U.S.—the grandchildren of the great wave of Eastern European immigrants who arrived here between 1882 and 1914—is growing up and marrying. "And," he says, "history has shown us that in the third generation in any free country, Jewish communities have started coming apart."

Last October, the American Jewish Committee assembled 30 Jewish groups for a conference to consider ways to increase birthrates. After considering such proposals as offering tuition breaks at Jewish schools for larger families and more synagogue and community day care, participants wound up recommending that rabbis and Jewish groups more actively encourage childbearing and family values.

Some, however, doubt that such injunctions will work. "Babies aren't generated by sermons," says Gerson Cohen, the chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, the academic and religious center for conservative Judaism in the U.S.

Other, more controversial solutions are being tried.

The Reform movement made a recent break with the tradition of matrilineal descent. Last year, Reform leaders declared that Judaism could be passed on to children by their fathers as well as their mothers.

While this does swell the ranks of individuals who may consider themselves Jewish, it has caused a furor in the Orthodox community, and threatens to produce a pocket of Jewry whose members may find themselves unable to marry another Jew without first undergoing conversion.

American Jews are also split over the Reform movement's attempts to seek converts to Judaism. This so-called Outreach program represents a break with centuries of Jewish tradition in which proselytizing has been disdained, states the Journal.

The Outreach program, which has been tested for the past few years, is deliberately low-key. Mainly it's aimed at the non-Jewish spouse of an intermarriage.

Conversion, the Journal articles point out, does not solve all problems. At least 10,000 Americans now convert to Judaism annually, compared with about 3,000 in 1963. According to the Journal, among the estimated 5.3 million Jews in the U.S., about one out of every 35 is a convert.

Yet the convert faces a rocky road. He or she may not be accepted by other Jews as "authentically" Jewish, and may be rejected by their non-Jewish family members. It also takes awhile, the articles state, until the "Jew by choice" feels Jewish. "How do you develop a Jewish soul?" asks Lottie Wolfe, a native of Denmark in her late 40's who decided to convert after she met her husband, an American Jew.

Focus On Jesse Cohen: Project Renewal Makes An Impact

Project Renewal has been functioning in Jesse Cohen for close to four years and its mark can be seen on the lives of its people and the exteriors of its building. Hundreds of children attend after-school groups and classes at the Youth Center, hundreds of adults have learned to read and write, hundreds of pre-school children are better prepared for first grade, scores of senior citizens have found worthwhile activities to fill the hours of their days. Dozens of apartment buildings have received new coats of paint. All this is due to Project Renewal jointly funded by the Israeli Government and Dayton, Columbus, Wilmington and the South American communities.

In recent months a new phenomenon is "catching on" in Jesse Cohen. The materials as well as the professional advice have been provided by Project Renewal, the work is being done by the residents themselves.

The project began this past summer when the residents of three buildings on Gaonim Street decided that even though the Physical Rehabilitation staff had not yet reached their buildings, they wanted to clean up their own environment. They started by removing the debris from the yard, building fences and planting flowers. The yard began to take shape and the residents of the neighboring building on Mesilat Olim Street decided to begin their own project.

"Everyone comes to help every Shabbat or Tuesday afternoon, whenever it's convenient" says Rachel Bracha whose parents have lived in the Mesilat Olim Street building for 21 years. She describes how all the residents got together, and with the help of Audrey Gil the landscape architect began the renovation work.

"It's really one neighbor - who did the mural - who has initiated a lot of the ideas of what we should do," she explains.

A mural covering the ground floor wall at the entrance to the building has been sculpted and painted in black, browns and gold. Avi Shalom, the designer and executor of the mural is not a professional artist, but is obviously talented and interested in using his talent to improve the common property.

"The idea is catching on" says Rachel, one of six children of an Egyptian father and Yemenite mother. "We're working on our building and across the street they also started. Pretty soon the neighbors next door will begin to see what can be done and see that its worth doing it..."

Thus Project Renewal is serving as a catalyst to prompt the people of Jesse Cohen to learn to help themselves. That's what Project Renewal is all about.

The second stage of next year's so-called peace process will, in this model, occur when the Arabists in Washington look beyond Hussein to the PLO, which they believe has a veto over what Hussein does or does not do and whose permission is therefore required. This step had no counterpart at Camp

David, for the simple reason that Sadat knew he could make peace with Israel only by acting on his own — that a veto given to the radicals would prevent him from acting.

Arafat: The Key

But in our hypothetical scenario, Arafat would be considered the key, so step two of the "peace process" would be to have more secret

U.S. negotiations with the PLO, in violation of our Sinai II commitments to Israel. The purpose would be to hint to Arafat that, if he plays along, he would get some kind of entity in the West Bank. And, since he says he would not even consider it without Jerusalem, we would likely see a promise to him that the Holy City will be negotiable.

Beyond promises to Arafat and Hussein, next year's peace process might very possibly also include some gestures toward Syria and Moscow to gain their permission to let Arafat allow Hussein to negotiate. And when all this is in place the Saudis might then give their permission. This would be innocuously labeled the "comprehensive approach!"

Overall then, before this thing called a peace process ever got off the ground, we would have an entire list of U.S. actions profoundly hostile to Israel and to U.S.-Israel relations. Here is the foreboding scenario:

•One, the U.S. would again "distance" itself from Israel to prove to the Arabs it could be "evenhanded."

•Two, the U.S. would tell the Europeans and Arabs to pressure Israel, implying a threat to the lifeline linking

Dover, Delaware

May 8, 1984

Dear Friends:

Please accept my congratulations on your 36th Anniversary. Your organization is to be commended for its outstanding contributions to the Jewish community in particular, but the entire Delaware community as well. The example that each of you sets in your dedication to your fellow man inspires all of us to give more of ourselves.

Best wishes for a memorable celebration!

Sincerely,

Gejdenson Takes Critics And Supporters Of Israel To Task

BOSTON, Mass. — Both critics and supporters of aid to Israel were taken to task by Rep. Sam Gejdenson (D., Conn.) at the 1984 Biennial Convention of JWB at historic Faneuil Hall, original Massachusetts state house built in 1742.

Speaking to almost 1,000 Jewish communal leaders from throughout the U.S., Canada, Israel, Argentina, and England, Rep. Gejdenson, member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said: "Supporters of Israel do not articulate an effective argument in behalf of Israel."

He criticized Jewish communal leaders as "not being active enough in standing up for Jewish rights as other people stand up for their rights."

Rep. Gejdenson castigated other Congressmen who "haven't done their homework" and who do not know how to answer critics of aid to Israel.

"There are those who say that the U.S. gives too much aid to Israel," he said. "But in fact, we give far less to Israel than we give to democracies in Western Europe and throughout the world."

'Hitler's #1 Enemy: Buried Alive' Will Air Wednesday, May 23 On Channel 12

Budapest, Hungary 1944, Adolph Eichmann's power is absolute and he is determined to push forward Hitler's final solution - the elimination of all European Jews. Raoul Wallenberg is a Swedish diplomat stationed in Budapest, with no power or authority, yet during that year he saved the lives of over 100,000 Hungarian Jews.

Ironically, his reward was to be arrested and imprisoned by the Soviets in the Gulag Archipelago where some say he is alive to this day.

HITLER'S #1 ENEMY: BURIED ALIVE uses a mix of historical footage and interviews to trace Wallenberg's exploits and to examine the belief that he may still be alive.

Soviet Delegation In Israel

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — The Deputy Mayor of Moscow, Anatoly Kostanko, arrived here last week at the head of a seven-member Soviet delegation. They were invited by the Israel-Soviet Friendship Committee to join in celebrating the 39th anniversary of the Allied victory over Nazi Germany.

According to members of the group, their visit does not indicate any change in Soviet relations with Israel which have not existed on a diplomatic or trade level since 1967. In speaking to reporters, they seemed mainly interested in justifying their government's decision to boycott the Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

Another Israeli Bank Reports A Net Loss For 1983

By Hugh Orgel

TEL AVIV, (JTA) — The IDB Bankholding Co., parent company of the IDB Development Bank and the Israel Discount Bank, announced recently a net loss of 1.859 billion Shekels ($17.2 million) in 1983 compared to a net profit of 2.081 billion Shekels ($19.3 million) in 1982.

IDB was the last of Israel's four largest banks to publish its annual balance sheet for last year. The others — Bank Leumi, Bank Hapoalim and the Mizrahi Bank — all registered substantial losses.

Like the other banks, the IDB's balance was adjusted for inflation and capital erosion, on the recommendation of the Institute of Certified Public Accountants. Without such adjustments, IDB would have shown a considerable profit, bank sources said.

Effort Continues To Defeat Anti-Israel Ballot Proposition In California

By Ben Gallob

NEW YORK, (JTA) — A total of 40 volunteers made door-to-door canvasses last Sunday in Berkeley, California, in what was described as part of an organized effort to defeat an initiative now on the ballot for the June 5 California presidential primary, which calls for cuts in United States aid to Israel equal Israeli expenditures for settlements in the occupied territories, an official opposed to the initiative said today.

John Kaufman, coordinator for the Coalition for Middle East Peace and Justice, told the Jewish Telegraphic Agency, in a telephone interview, that the coalition hopes to field an ever-larger number of volunteers for every Sunday between now and the June 5 primary day.

The American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee, which has headquarters in Washington, confirmed to the JTA previously that it had organized the campaign in three cities.

Canada Bans Importation Of Book Claiming Holocaust Was A Hoax

TORONTO, (JTA) — The Canadian government has banned the importation of a book, The Hoax of the Twentieth Century, by Arthur Butz, an associate professor of chemical engineering in Northwestern University in Evanston Illinois, it was reported by the League of Human Rights of B'nai B'rith.

Butz claimed, in his book, that the attempt of the Nazis during World War II to exterminate Jews and that the Nazis killed six million Jews was a hoax.

Editorial—

Israel to its one real supporter in the world.

•Three, the U.S. could take some steps to cozy up with the PLO — a point most advocates of this so-called "peace process" consider particularly essential.

•Four, before the negotiations even began, the U.S. could promise the Arabs an outcome close to their terms and not Israel's.

•Five, the U.S. could give some more arms to the Arabs to sweeten them up for the peace process ahead and prove to them that the president can ignore the pro-Israel feelings of Congress and the American people.

•Six, in all likelihood, even the Syrians and the Soviets might be offered a piece of the action, as the Carter Administration did, to get them to allow the game to be played. Look for headlines that say: "U.S. to play Syrian card!"

When you lay it all out explicitly this way, in a list, the contrast with a true peace process like the one we saw at Camp David is quite clear. And it is equally clear why the very idea of resuming this corrupted version of the peace process is repugnant to people in our coalition, to those who care about real peace and about a healthy relationship between our country and the one democracy in the Middle East.

Our foreboding, the product not only of Israel's worsening circumstances, but also of the gathering dark clouds of both isolationism and Arabism in Washington. In the intimacy of our hearts, we fear that the fertility of all our works, exemplified by the burgeoning U.S.-Israel relationship we see before us, will give way once again to destructive tensions and mutual recriminations.

Use Our Resources

What is to be done? In essence, we have to use the resources at our command to transform the relationship between the United States and Israel, to make structural changes, to sink down roots that will ensure that the tree of U.S.-Israel relations can withstand any storm generated either in Washington or in the Middle East. We have to work now to ensure that we never again face the crisis that beset U.S.-Israel relations in the cold period of 1982-1983.

First, we have to finish building the military and economic alliance between the United States and Israel. As I have already pointed out, this process is under way. Strategic cooperation, all-grant aid, and the Free Trade

The largest group of Jewish Community Center leaders and professionals ever gathered met in Boston in late April to discuss, review, and confirm the central role played by Jewish Community Centers in their respective communities.

Judy Levy, a vice-president of the Center and winner of the JCC's Barbara Weiner Young Leadership Award, was recognized and honored as "a young leader whose personal commitment to her community and Center have already been exemplary, and in whom the promise of great future achievement is certain."

Along with Judy Levy and her husband, Dr. Allan Levy, the delegation from Wilmington included Marvin Shepard, current president of the Center, Nan Lipstein, president-elect, and Irv Kaufman, executive director.

Blanche Moore

Blanche Moore: JCC Staff Member Of The Month

If the JCC were not a community center, it could quickly become a gourmet restaurant, thanks to the daily efforts of Blanche Moore. Since November, 1975, she has been the cook for the Center's Senior Lunch Program, producing and serving over 200,000 meals for seniors. In recent years, she has begun to expand her culinary services to other programs; recently, it was her efforts that made the Center's Passover Restaurant such a delightful event, guaranteeing that next year's Passover Restaurant will be greeted with even greater enthusiasm.

Unlike the popular conception that all cooks are temperamental prima donnas who run their kitchens in authoritarian style, Blanche Moore is a gentle, warm, and generous person who runs her kitchen efficiently and yet is open to the special needs of her Senior diners, ranging from dietary restrictions to who wants light or dark chicken.

She comes from a warm and loving family: she has a daughter, Karen, who is a senior in business administration at Delaware State College, and is very close with her niece, Renisha. She is engaged to Walter Jones.

Beloved by the Senior R.S.V.P. volunteers, respected by her co-workers Chester Ellison and Ida Seidenstat, deeply appreciated by her supervisor, Rae Freschman, and the director of her department, Syd Kneitel, Blanche Moore has earned the Center's "Golden Spoon Award" for taking a difficult job and making it work. The board of directors recently passed a resolution of thanks in appreciation for all her efforts.

15th Century Illuminated Bible To Be Auctioned At Sotheby's Judaica Sale Next Month

On June 26, Sotheby's will hold an evening sale of Important Judaica. Highlighting the selection of 70 Hebrew printed books and manuscripts from various owners is a 15th century Hebrew Bible from Prague, beautifully illuminated with richly colored initial word panels. The Judaica sale has been compared in scholarly importance with the collection formed by the late David Solomon Sassoon, which was offered by Sotheby's in a series of sales in London, Zurich and New York (1970-81). The June 26 sale will begin at 7 p.m. at Sotheby's New York Galleries, 72nd Street and York Avenue.

Coinciding with the offering of the Prague Bible is the landmark exhibition, "The Precious Legacy: Judaic Treasures from the Czechoslovak State Collections," which opens at the Jewish Museum in New York April 15.

"The quality, rarity and range of the assembled material in Sotheby's June sale makes this auction of Hebrew books and manuscripts the most significant in the field to be held in North America," states George Snyder, Judaica expert at Sotheby's. The importance of this sale rests on the inclusion of several magnificent works which have not been viewed by the public in nearly 45 years.

Sotheby's rediscovery of this material is a landmark move in the ongoing assessment and reassessment of the extant collections of Hebrew books and manuscripts in the world.

The most celebrated lot is a pristine and beautifully illuminated Bible (Tanach), written in 1489 for a prominent citizen of Prague and subsequently acquired by the noted German philosopher, Moses Mendelsohn, and later by the famous German family of Daniel Itzig in the 18th century. His heirs, numbering 15 children, are recorded on a flyleaf of the bible and were known to have married into some of the greatest Jewish families in Germany and Europe during the 18th and 19th centuries.

Over a dozen Hebrew incunables, books printed after the invention of printing and before 1500, are also included in this sale. Extant Hebrew incunables are generally more rare than their Latin counterparts, given the prohibition faced by the early Jewish printers and the subsequent destruction of Hebrew books through the ages. Many of the items are rare first editions of these early imprints from Naples, Rome, Mantua and Soncino, and are represented in very fine condition.

All items will be on presale exhibition from Sunday June 17 to Sunday June 24. Catalogues for Highly Important Hebrew Books and Manuscripts are available for $14 at the galleries, $16 by mail and $20 overseas. Catalogues for Judaic Works of Art are available for $12 at the galleries, $14 by mail and $16 overseas.

I was looking at some statistics for Jewish readers recently and boy-o-boy what we have!

- Jewish Voice readers travel frequently (within the U.S. and overseas).
- Jewish Voice readers dine out frequently (at least three times a month).
- Jewish Voice readers are well educated.
- Jewish Voice readers are investment oriented.
- Jewish Voice readers represent an excellent source of consumerism.

I didn't know we have "the force" - let's use it to build a better ad campaign for the Jewish Voice.

Remember the steps:

- Step 1. Please look at our ads.
- Step 2. When you visit one of our advertisers, mention that you saw their ad in the Jewish Voice.
- Step 3. If you know of a firm that you patronize frequently and who should be advertising, ask them why they aren't in the Voice. Then call us to follow up.
- Step 4. Support our advertisers. They are supporting us!

Races To Watch Part II

31st District —New York

This is not a political endorsement of any particular candidate. The Jewish Voice is presenting this series as an educational service to the Jewish community of Delaware.

Congressman Jack Kemp (R) is best known as a former pro football quarterback who is a national Republican political figure.

What is less known is that Kemp is one of the leading Congressional supporters of Israel in the House or Senate.

Kemp's support for strong U.S.-Israel relations is significant because of his national political following and his position as ranking Republican on the subcommittee which handles foreign aid appropriations. In 1983 his backing for $2.6 billion worth of aid to Israel was a crucial element in the passage of foreign aid legislation.

Kemp is very safe politically in his suburban Buffalo district. Fortunately he will have no difficulty being elected to his 7th term in 1984. He has been widely mentioned by commentators as a future candidate for the presidency.

Gratz Teachers Enjoy Their Students

GAIL TOLPIN

Gail Tolpin, in her first year of teaching at Delaware Gratz, has provided her students with many interesting learning experiences. She currently teaches education to the upperclassmen. One recent classroom project was the student production of a film strip on the Falashas. Gail Tolpin received her BA from Brandeis University and a masters of theological studies from the Harvard Divinity School. She has taught adult education classes and at the Hebrew High School in Louisville, Ky., the Temple in the Pines, Miramar, Fla., Beth Shalom of Miami, Fla. and Temple Beth David in Randolph, Mass.

Her husband is completing his residency in anesthesiology at the hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. They have two sons, ages 8 and 5 and a daughter, age 2½.

Gail Tolpin summarizes

Gail Tolpin

her feelings on the importance of a Gratz education this way: "I enjoy teaching the students at Gratz and am quite impressed with their eagerness to learn, and with the amount of Jewish learning they have already accomplished. It is very exciting to think of these students as future teachers and parents of children who will carry on the Jewish heritage."

-by Johanna Goldlust

at Gratz, she teaches a modern Hebrew course at the University of Delaware and serves as curriculum and faculty consultant for Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth Talmud Torah. She is also kept busy with her work with the confirmation-bikkurim class at Adas Kodesch each year. All these jobs are in addition to being a wife and mother. She is married to Rabbi Leonard Gewirtz and they have two grown sons, one of whom has made aliyah to Israel.

Gladys Gewirtz feels that it is vital for the community to have a Hebrew high school where students can study the classical Jewish texts. She believes that many of the students are dedicated, and benefit from the study. She states that this study is important because "it is only through such knowledge that we can have an assurance of a self-aware and active Jewish community."

Gladys Gewirtz

GLADYS GEWIRTZ

Gladys Gewirtz has been teaching at Gratz almost since it began here in Wilmington. For the past 18 years, she has been a member of the teaching staff at Gratz and has faithfully contributed her own special intelligence, diligence and humor.

Currently, she is teaching courses on Bible and Rabbinics, including Talmud and Mishnah. She comes well-prepared to teach these courses, equipped with a BA from Brooklyn College and attendance at Bet Medresh L'Morat in New York and The College of Jewish Studies - JTSNY.

Gladys Gewirtz puts her knowledge to good use. In addition to her teaching position

Gladys Gewirtz works hard to make her classes interesting for her students at Gratz who come to her after spending a full day at school. She copes admirably well with wandering attention, less than perfect attendance and "occasional" noisiness from her students. In short, she make it a pleasant experience to attend her class.

Children Celebrate Israel's 36th Birthday

May 7 marked the second joint sponsorship program held this school year by the Albert Einstein Academy, the religious schools of Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth, Beth Emeth, Beth Shalom, Beth El of Newark, and the Children's Department of the Jewish Community Center.

Over 200 kindergarten through seventh graders celebrated a double chai event-Israel's 36th birthday. This very special Yom Ha-Azmaut celebration began with a snack in the JCC auditorium, and was followed by a unique service led by Rabbi Ira Schiffer of Temple Beth El in Newark. Children in groups of five then experienced a movie entitled "Bon Voyage," a travelogue about Israel; a sing-along with Bob Weiner; and an Israeli dance performance presented by the Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth Children's Dance Group led by Harriet Ainbinder.

The highlight of the celebration was a presentation awards ceremony. Eighty four youngsters submitted entries in an Israel poster/poetry contest. All entries have been on display at the JCC. Mazel tov for the fine work produced by the following winners:

Congregation Beth Emeth: Rachel Weisberg, Wendy Weiss, Nikki Rosen, Joseph D'Agostino, Sharon Nemser. Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth: Nathan Pinson.

Congregation Beth Shalom: Amy Lieber, Stacey Kanofsky, Jamie Kanofsky, Brian Dombchik, Cheryl Morgans-tein, Jenny Milbauer.

Temple Beth El: Jessica Tanny, Marc Cohen, Stacey Alinkoff, Ara Easley, Roni Zarge.

ORT Day 1984

The members of Brandywine Chapter Women's American ORT have begun the most widespread and intensive Spring Membership drive in their history in March, as ORT enters its 104th year of service as the vocational and technical education program of the Jewish people. This was announced by Ilene Sivakoff, president, who heads the spring membership campaign. She also announced that ORT Day 1984, proclaimed by Gov. duPont and Lt. Gov. Castle on March 16, was observed locally and throughout the nation.

Sivakoff said that "Women's American ORT in Delaware will mount an accelerated, all-out growth campaign that aims at reaching out to every American Jewish woman who wished to build the global ORT program of vocational and technical education and to help shape public policy in the U.S. We know that Women's American ORT is an effective platform from which to help achieve Jewish and human rights everywhere, to help the people of Israel in their search for peace and security, to encourage pluralism as a means of sustaining and nourishing our democratic society, to combat anti-Semitism, to defeat the pernicious cult movements and to help achieve quality public education for everyone in the United States. American Jewish women who agree with our ideas are welcome to add their voices to ours and so to make themselves heard. We are convinced that our all-out mobilization this year will bring us scores of thousands of new members who will aid us in reaching our goals.

ORT, the vocational and technical education program of the Jewish people, has been in operation since 1880. Over two million people have been trained by ORT since its inception. Today, the international ORT network is comprised of some 800 vocational and technical schools located in two dozen countries on five continents, with an annual student enrollment in excess of 100,000, 75,000 of whom study in Israel. The Bramson ORT Technical Institute in New York City, ORT's recent entry into the Jewish Day School movement in Florida and the forthcoming Los Angeles ORT Technical Institute (LAOTI) are bringing ORT's experience to the American scene. Women's American ORT, founded in 1927, is the largest of membership organizations in 40 nations which support the global ORT program.

For more information, please call 478-2098 or 652-3933.

Reverse The Nuclear Arms Race

Beginning Saturday, May 26, college peace groups and chaplaincies throughout the country will be walking to "Reverse the Nuclear Arms Race." They call themselves the National Pilgrimage to Reverse the Nuclear Arms Race. It will be a 100-mile walk beginning in Philadelphia and culminating on June 3 at the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C. with a mass rally.

The Pilgrimage Committee has tentative plans to house the "walkers" Sunday and Monday evenings in area churches. They are asking all local churches and synagogues to both join the walk and more importantly to provide lodging and food for some of the walkers. Walkers will be delivered to host homes, therefore transportation is not required. An evening meal, light breakfast and a sandwich for them to take the following day are requested. Some walkers need kosher meals.

Anyone interested in helping out during the time this group will spend in Delaware, please contact the Beth Emeth synagogue office, 764-2393. The Social Action Committee will then contact the church which is housing the marchers and secure further information as to how we can be of assistance.

Jewish War Veterans

The Jewish War Veterans of Delaware will hold their annual Dept. of Delaware convention and installation breakfast meeting and Memorial Day services on Sunday, May 27.

The installation breakfast will be held in the auditorium of the Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth Synagogue at 10 a.m. - Washington St. Extension & Torah Drive. Officers of the Dept. of Delaware, Post #525 - Post #747 - and Post #767 will be installed.

Worship services will begin in the chapel at 9:30 a.m.

Memorial Day Services to honor deceased Delaware Veterans will be held at the Jewish Community Cemetery, Foulk Road & Concord Pike, immediately following the breakfast. Rabbi Jacob Kraft will officiate at the cemetery services.

Admission charge to the breakfast will be $2 per person. Proceeds will be used by the Jewish War Veterans Hospital Committee to defray expenses of their regular socials and entertainment at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Elsmere.

All paid up members of JWV of Delaware and their spouses are cordially invited to attend the breakfast and services.

No reservations are required. Veterans are asked to wear their caps.

Please make every attempt to attend this important convention.

The main speaker will be - Horace H. Best, Sr., State Director of Veterans Employment & Training Services for the U.S. Dept. of Labor.

AKSE Centennial

TOBA AND SIDNEY GROSS TO BE HONORED

On the threshold of its centennial celebration, Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth Congregation will honor Toba and Sidney Gross who have served the congregation for the latter third of these hundred years. Both Sidney and Toba received their synagogue education with the Young Israel movement in N.Y.C. As a young couple, as soon as Sidney came out of the Navy, they joined Adas Kodesch, 6th & French Streets. They became involved immediately in the religious work of the Congregation.

For having served 15 consecutive years on the board of governors, Sidney was elected as life member of the board. He is a past-president of the Men's Club. For 25 years he served as chairman of the Yizkor book introducing many innovations, thereby raising about $60,000 during his chairmanship. He attends the daily and Shabbat Minyan and is capable of leading the Shachareet and Mussaf as Baal-T'filah. He is a member of the AKSE Choral Group and Holiday Choir. He is an active member of the Ritual Committee and Va'ad HaKashrut. He also serves as Co-Gabbai in daily and Sabbath minyanim.

Mr. Gross served the congregation in many other capacities: many times he served as chairman of the Nominating Committee; because of his business experience, he advises the Building Committee on electrical and mechanical needs.

His wife, Toba, is a true

Ezer K'negdo. (Gen. 2:18) With equal zeal and commitment, Toba served as a leader in Sisterhood and in congregation. A past president of Sisterhood and also serving as advisor to successive administrations, she was elected as life member of the board of Sisterhood in recognition and appreciation of her many years of service. Toba is an expert on every facet of Sisterhood organization and was recognized for her abilities when she was elected president of Tri-State Chapter (PA, NJ, DE) of Women's Branch (U.O.-J.C.A.). She visited many chapters to advise their programming.

For the past three and half decades Toba and Sidney have been a source of strength to the synagogue. We pay tribute to this fine couple, to the ideals they cherish, and to Yeshiva University and A.K.S.E. Congregation.

Everybody is invited to attend the testimonial breakfast honoring Sidney and Toba Gross, in behalf of Yeshiva University's Scholarship Program, on Sunday, June 3, 9 a.m., at AKSE Synagogue.

CORNERSTONE DEDICATION

Everyone is invited to the 1985 dedication of the Adas Kodesch cornerstone taken from the 6th & French Building and relocated in the garden in front of the synagogue on Washington Blvd. This dedication will take place on Sunday, June 3, 1984, at 11:30 a.m.

President, Harvey Rubenstein, will take the opportunity of this dedication to read a proclamation, announcing the year 5745 as the centennial year of AKSE Congregation, 1885-1985.

AKSE Religious School

1984-85 SCHOOL REGISTRATION

Registrations for the 1984-85 school year are now being accepted for pre-aleph, Talmud Torah and bikkurim programs at the Adas Kodesch Shel Emeth Religious School office.

Children who are 8 years old and/or entering third grade in September should be enrolled in the aleph class of the Talmud Torah. There are also pre-aleph one-day-per-week programs for children entering second or first grade, and for children entering kindergarten or pre-kindergarten classes. These pre-aleph classes provide a necessary introduction to Jewish living. The students participate in meaningful, Jewish experiences, and their Jewish identity becomes real to them.

The bikkurim program is open to eighth, ninth, and 10th graders. Students in the 11th and 12th grades who have not had the offered courses are also welcome to attend. All courses are taught in English at the high school level, and there are no prerequisites.

The faculty in all three departments of the AKSE Religious School is comprised of professional, competent, dedicated teachers. Student/teacher ratio is small.

Children of non-affiliated families may attend the religious school. For information about the AKSE Religious School, please call Helen Gordon, administrative director, at 762-2705.

Registration forms are available at the synagogue office from Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., or you may call, and a form will be mailed to you.

Area — when they are finally nailed down — will indeed transform the relationship. Israel will then come to be seen, not as a supplicant for American handouts but as a full-fledged alliance partner, helping to promote and defend American interests in this vital but volatile region.

Second, we have to ensure that whoever is in office in January 1985 will return to the real peace process — the Camp David process — and will not instead pursue a process predicated on pressuring Israel. This means, above all, persuading policy makers in Washington that a strong and secure relationship with Israel is the very foundation for any progress in solving the Arab-Israeli conflict. Why? Because it robs the Arabs of a viable war option and provides an embattled Israel with the assurances it needs.

Pursuing the Camp David process means insisting the U.S. policy not be based on wishful thinking about Arab intentions, but rather on a clear understanding that it is the Arabs who must first show a willingness to make peace before the United States and Israel can be expected to respond. It means jettisoning once and for all the idea that the PLO could ever be a suitable partner for peace negotiations because its fundamental and unalterable objective is to destroy Israel. In this regard, the 1975 U.S. commitment not to recognize or negotiate with the PLO must be reaffirmed, not because we are against talking but rather because talking with the PLO has manifestly failed to change its attitude toward Israel. It has instead helped legitimize the PLO, eroded Israel's faith in America's commitments, and undermined King Hussein's ability to replace the PLO as a spokesman for the Palestinians, who comprise 60% of the King's subjects.

Pursuing a real peace process also means reasserting the principle that Arab states still in a state of confrontation with Israel should not be the recipients of American arms until and unless they agree to make peace with Israel. Arms must come to be viewed by the Arabs as a reward, not an inducement.

Not Negotiable

And it also means recognizing that some things are not negotiable. Israel's existence is certainly not negotiable, but we must also bring the world to understand that Jerusalem — as the capital of Israel — is also not negotiable, let alone handed over to Yasir Arafat to be his capital. That is why this organization and other American Jewish organizations are working diligently to push for legislation that clearly states to all that at least our first branch of government recognizes Jerusalem as Israel's capital and believes that the U.S. Embassy should be relocated there. As of tonight 221 U.S. Representatives and 40 U.S. Senators publicly agree with us.

Third, we have to defeat the campaign to discredit Israel on the campuses, in the press, and in the elite think tanks and foreign policy houses. We are already back on the campuses as you can see in our new monograph, The AIPAC College Guide.

And finally, we have to broaden the base of the politically active pro-Israel community. There are a lot of people out there, a majority of Americans — Protestants and Catholics of all stripes and hues — who sympathize with Israel, who recognize that Israel embodies the very values that Americans hold so dear. We have to go back to our communities, become more involved, and mobilize if we are to complete the tasks we have undertaken.

We have come a long way. The state of AIPAC is very good. But we still have a long way to go before we relax. The history of our people has taught us that we can never afford to be complacent, that the good times must only serve as a preparatory period for the bad times to come. If we act now, we may yet succeed in avoiding those bad times. But if they come, with your help we will be ready.

Dear Rachel

Dear Rachel,
There are a lot of stupid jokes and insults about Jewish American Princesses. Well, I'm beginning to think I single-handedly raised a Jewish American Prince. My son is coming home from college in four weeks, and he has made NO PLANS for working. When he spends a weekend here, he lays around in bed, calls his friends, eats, and washes his clothes. Not once has he gone out looking for a summer job. He thinks that just because he sacrificed by going to a less expensive college where the scholarships were better instead of Ivy League, he has done enough. I work very hard to supplement his scholarships and loans, which he should realize. But when I try to talk to him about looking for work, he slams his door and stays in his room or goes out with his friends, for all I know to drink beer. Do you think we are headed for trouble? I don't want him to become a bum and it is very important to me that he finishes college, especially because I didn't.

Sole Supporting Parent

Dear Parent,

It is time for your prince to wake up and face reality. Review your financial circumstances with him. Then inform him now that he will be allowed a two week vacation when school ends. After that, start charging him a fair sum for room and board. Offer your advice on getting a job but don't press it. Although he may say that other parents find jobs for their kids, it will do him good to seek a job on his own.

You might want to save the money he pays you for this fall's tuition. Education for life begins at home.

Mental Health Of Older Americans

By Arnold Lieberman,
Executive Director

The month of May has been designated both "Mental Health Month" and "Older Americans Month." One of the major concerns of our agency is the mental health of older Americans.

Mental health is a concern at every age level today since we are all subject to many and varied factors that are not conducive to good mental health.

However, the elderly as a group may face more pressure and more important, have fewer defenses with which to cope. Being of frail health; having minimal financial resources; and not having an adequate support system leaves one in a perilous position.

Our work with elderly clients and their families runs the gamut of needs and problems that may be a concern. We often focus on the three essential factors I have highlighted above. Health, resources and a support system are vital areas in the adjustment of anyone, but especially the elderly.

Many factors effect the health and the health care of the elderly. The normal process of aging results in decreases, losses and pathology. Adequate preventative care, maintenance and treatment become more important, but frequently less obtainable. Apart from the cost factor many elderly people simply do not know what services are available; where, and when they can be obtained; and how to get them. Besides other obvious reasons, another reason for the elderly to avoid living isolated lives is the need to be in the mainstream where essential information is disseminated.

This leads into the second factor, which is adequate resources, financial and otherwise. It is obviously not possible to raise the income of all elderly people to a comfortable level. What is being done is to provide special services for the elderly and make these services affordable by underwriting part of the cost. This is being done in the areas of health care, housing, food, and other necessary services. The problem in all these areas is the same - many people are not able to avail themselves of the service for the reasons given above.

The third factor is the need for an adequate support system of people, and services that are appropriate and available. The days of an extended family living in the same neighborhood or even the same community have all but disappeared. When relatives do not exist, are not available, or do not get along, it is necessary to develop friends, acquaintances, or professionals to serve this purpose. This need underscores the importance of a corps of volunteers in a social service agency, who can help to meet such a need. Communal living for the elderly also helps to meet this need as well as other needs.

Staff and volunteers at Jewish Family Service are very much involved in these three critical areas in the lives of many elderly people in our community. By touching their lives, informing them, and actually taking them to the services they need; we are improving the quality of people's lives and in some cases even prolonging their lives.

There is room for more people in this worthwhile and vital service to the elderly people of our community. Call us at 478-9411 to learn more.

JEWISH FAMILY SERVICE is now open on Wednesdays from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m. All other days, Monday through Friday, office hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Call 478-9411 to schedule an appointment.

Letter To The Community: I Pray That Albert Einstein Academy Does Not Become Past History

As I was participating in a Yom Hashoah service, my thoughts reflected upon the six million Jewish martyrs who gave their lives for what they believed. As American Jews we light candles to recall what happened to our people, but more importantly, to remind us that we cannot let this happen again.

As I look back on the past years of Albert Einstein Academy and remember the ups and downs that this Hebrew day school has experienced, I hope and pray that it does not become a thing of the past for the Wilmington Jewish community.

One might question my reason for thinking and commenting on this. I have seen boys and girls come through our doors, partake of our education and go forth to the outside world with a positive identity and quite knowledgeable about who and what they are.

Students who have attended

Albert Einstein Academy are currently attending such colleges as University of Pennsylvania, Tufts, Purdue, Moravian, Brandeis, University of Maryland, and the University of Delaware. Their academic areas include: pre-med, pre-law, engineering, business, and education to name a few. Our students enrolled in private and public high schools are active participants in all school activities such as honor societies, sports, dramatics, government. They are applauded for their high academic excellence.

These students will become the future leaders of our Jewish communities because Judaism has become part of them and is not just an outer garment that can be changed to suit the environment. In addition to rote memorization of the history, language, and Torah, our youngsters have internalized what it means to be Jewish in communities where they are a minority. Many of us grew up in areas where there were many other Jewish people. Today Jews are spread throughout the city and suburbs. For this reason we should feel the need of grouping together so as not to lose our beautiful heritage and traditions. We need to help our children grow and become good Jews, proud of their language, rituals, and background. In this way they will feel good about themselves, and work for the survival of our people.

Education at Albert Einstein Academy has been of the highest quality, in secular and Hebrew studies. The students are stimulated to achieve as much as they are able. Not only do the students receive an excellent education, both in Judaism and general curriculum, but they have also acquired a degree of awareness, introspectively. The children obtain a positive feeling about themselves, their religion, and their backgrounds. They pride themselves in understanding the language of their forefathers, reading from the Sefer Torah, leading services, davening, using many prayers they have learned, singing and chanting, and actively observing all the Holidays. The feeling of Yiddishkeit is stimulated by the school environment. All this gives the children confidence to go out in the world and succeed!

I hope the Jewish community of Delaware does not have to light a candle of remembrance for the Hebrew day school that was, but it will continue to be an eternal light of strength and growth, and gain the proper recognition due it. We need your support, encouragement, and blessings. May Albert Einstein Academy be blessed with continued success and growth for many years to come.

Tomas Schuman (Yuri Bezmenov)

Former Novosti Employee To Speak On Soviet News Distortion

A former employee of the Soviet news agency Novosti, who defected to the West, is coming to Newark, Del. to speak on how the Communists plant false stories in our news. His public appearance is at Howard Johnsons, Newark at I-95 and Route 896 North on Tuesday, May 29 at 8 p.m. Admission is $3 in advance or $3.50 at the door. For advance tickets call 834-5393.

Tomas Schuman (Yuri Bezmenov) was born in the U.S.S.R. near Moscow in 1941. After completing his military training and education in Oriental Studies with a specialization in the Hindi and Urdu languages at Moscow State University, Schuman became an operative for Novosti. (That means "news" in Russian.)

When he fled Communism he was working out of the Soviet embassy in New Delhi, India. Disguising himself as a hippie with a wig and beads, Schuman defected in 1970.

Schuman points out that 75% of Novosti personnel are really members of the KGB (Soviet Secret Police). The Communists have a name for their process of creating propaganda. It's called "disinformation" and the KGB has a whole department by that name.

"In the U.S.S.R. Novosti slanders and downgrades everything foreign if not under Soviet domination. In other countries, Novosti presents selected and censored half-truths glorifying the Soviet way of life in concert with all the imperialistic efforts of the Communists."
